Derek Jeter
 SHORTSTOP

The face of the New York Yankees, Derek Jeter has etched his name alongside Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle as one of the all-time Yankees greats.

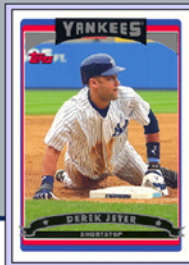

The always solid — and frequently spectacular — shortstop has earned the American League Rookie of the Year award, three Gold Glove awards and four World Series rings during an incredible 13-year career. It's no coincidence that the Yankees have qualified for postseason play every year in which Jeter has donned pinstripes.

The eight-time All-Star enjoyed another stellar season in 2007, stroking 200-plus hits for the sixth time and scoring at least 100 runs for the 11th time. Jeter is now fourth and fifth, respectively, in Yankees annals with 2,356 career hits and 1,379 runs.

A cutting base runner, Jeter swiped 15 bases to move into second place in franchise history with 264 career steals. For usual, Jeter flashed plenty of leather in 2007, recording a .970 fielding percentage and participating in a career-high 104 double plays.

The most memorable fielding plays of his career remain

Derek Jeter

2007 AVG .322 HR 12 RBI 73 SB 15 BB 56 SLG .452 OPS .388

"The Flip" in the 2001 Division Series, when he came out of nowhere to grab an errant throw and flip it backhanded from the first base line to nab an Oakland runner at the plate, and "The Dive" in 2004 when he suffered a lacerated chin while lunging into the stands to catch a pop fly against Boston.

At age 33, it appears that Jeter has plenty left in the tank and will continue to sparkle at the plate and in the field.

A favorite to travelers of a nation of Americans, Bountiful Harvest is meticulously hand painted by skilled artisans in the rich, warm colors of harvest time. Notice the mounds of golden grains, the weather-worn red of the proud old building, the myriad shades of green and dappled bronze of the leaves. Together, they evoke a time, a place and a character that embodies the spirit of America's heartland.
